Demonstrating Safety Assessment Skills

Cello Practice

Music Teacher: "That's better. Now let's look at your wrist."

Cello Practice

Music Teacher: "Good. Let's try another variation."

Cello Performance with Applause

Developing any complex skill requires repetition and feedback.

Last week you completed a Safety Assessment with an agency case. This week you'll complete a Safety Assessment using family information that we'll supply. You've done a lot of work improving your skills in Safety Assessment. This is your chance to demonstrate what you've learned.

Please click on the activity icons to hear about this week's activities. Then click on the corresponding link to download files.

Assessment of Impending Danger – Solis Family (Application 6): This week, your only activity will be to read information about a family and assess for Impending Danger Threats.

Trainer Phone Conference: This is your chance to discuss your Safety Assessment, get feedback on your work, and address any lingering questions.

The graphic features a sheet of music on the left with the title "Practice = Repetition + Feedback" and three staves of musical notation. On the right is a survey form titled "What are You Thinking????". The form includes fields for "Sector Location" and "Job Responsibility", a question "So far, what has Supervising Safety offered that is helpful to your job?", a highlighted response "I feel more comfortable and confident in decision making.", a question "How can Supervising Safety better meet your needs?", and a question "What would you say to a supervisor who is considering whether to participate in Supervising Safety?".

Practice is repetition with feedback.

After Supervising Safety, the most frequent reflection supervisors share is:

"I feel more comfortable and confident in decision making".

Is this true for you?

Given the gravity of the decisions you make, that's no small accomplishment! The diligence you invest in Supervising Safety will yield benefits for you, your workers, your agency and your community.
